Rice Markets Generally Firm During Past Week

Washington, Jan. 14—(P)— The Agriculture Department reported today that rice markets were gencrally iirm last week with demand holding moderate.

Export trade was slow because of a lack of export permits for Cuba, the department said in a weekly market review.
Takings by the territories were light since both Puerto Rico and Hawaii nave adequate supplies for current needs.

Williams Jr., who has announced that a slate of Eisenhower pledged candidates will be entered in the state's April 27 primary. Williams' group has not always seen eye to eye with the regular organization. and Williams himself was active in behalf of Gov. James H. Duff's reimary opponent when Duff was elected governor. Thus some Pensylvania call three witnesses each.

Goering, Ribbentrop and the others on trial were permitted to introduce the official German "White Book" which accused the Russians of the murders. They were also permitted to put on the stand a scientist who testified unclaims of innocence were false because trees—growing out of the communal grave of our officers—were old enough when the grave was discovered to prove that the ment of the public works, six men had been buried there some men had been buried there some months in jail and a $1,000 fine. time in the spring of 1941. The Rusians occupied the Katyn area a that time. The Rusian prosecutor produced bis own star witness—a Bulgarian scientist who had been used by the Nazis in 1943 as an official observer of the opening of the grave.

The Bulgarian now testifed that the Germans had permitted him to cret police when the Red Army entered Bulgaria, had been confined to a prison for a long period, and now was telling an entirely differ ent story from the one he had preent story from the one he had presented before.

The ultimate sentence of the Nazi war leaders eliminated mention of Katyn, though it had been prominently mentioned in the indictment.

Oblights then the Course

Obliquely, then, the Germans—though certainly guilty on other counts—had been acquitted of kill ing the 11,000 Polish officers.
But the blame was not pinned on its real perpetrators, the Russians.

Why? Because not even Nuern-burg, the first such court of justice in the history of civilization, was immune to the appearement of Russia by its Allies.

The rupture of Polish-Russian relations in April 1993 relations in April, 1943, over the Katyn incident, did not lessen our participation in the war against Hitler and our efforts to restab-lish our relations with the Kremlin.

lish our relations with the Kremlin, On April, 28, 1943, three days after the break, Gen. Sikurski formaily denied the Russian charges that we sought any part of Russian territory, reminded Stalin that thousands of our men were fighting the common enemy where ever that enemy could be reached, and stated that Poland would gon. and stated that Poland would con-tinue to live up to the pacts it had signed with Russia concerning the prosecution of the war and the re-storation of Polish sovereignty aft-er the war er the war. Stalin answered er the war.

Stalin answered indirectly on May 4 of that year, in the course of replying to two questions submitted to him by the Moscow correspondent of the London Times and the New York Times. I quote the questions and answers:

(1)—Does the government of the U. S. S. R. desire to see and strong and independent Poland after the defeat of Hitlerite Germany?

Stalin's answer—Unquestionably it does.

it does.
(2)—On what fundamentals is it your opinion that relations between Poland and the U. S. S. R. should be based after the war?

Stalin's answer—Upon the fund amentals of solid good neighborly relations and mutual respect, or, should the Polish people so desire, upon the fundamentals of an alliance providing for mutual assist ance providing for mutual assist-ance against the Germans as the chief enemies of the Soviet Union and Poland.

Gen. Sikorski took note of that.

"It is difficult for me not to show reserve," our Prime Minister said, reserve." our Prime Minister said, it "even in the face of such a favor able declaration by Premier Stalin, at the very moment when the Polish Ambassador has left flussia and the masses of Polsih population in the U. S. R. are left without the care and assistance of their Government."

Instead of a reply to this and further efforts to cooperate with Russia, we learned shortly thereafter that the Communist-reared "Union of Polish Patriots in the Soviet Union were announcing plans for the "future" of Poland.

Gen. Sikorski kept up his efforts

Gen. Sikerski kept up his efforts to heal the breach until the end of his lit.e

Before his last trip—an inspection of our army in the Middle East—he asked the British and American governments to obtain permission from Stalin to visit the Red leader in Moscow.

He flew to Palestine for the inspection and remained there a while, awaiting an invitation that never came. Instead of an invitation he was pronounced a "Fascist" by the Russian press and accused of "playing into the hands of the Germans."

Sorrowfully, but still hopeful of an accord, he started his return trip to London.

He flew from Cairo to Gibraltar and even there, in the last hours of his life, he found grief. Russian Ambassador Maisky was the guest that same day of the British commander at Gibraltar. Gen. Sikorski was placed in a part of the commander's house to guard against his being in the same room with the representative of what we still called an ally.

At 11 p. m. on July 4, 1943. Ger. S i k o r s k i 's Liberator plane struggled off the short runway at Gibraltar, was sorely buffeted by a gale and failing engine power, plummeled into the water.

He, his beloved daughter, all of his staff and a British M. P. attached to him went to their deaths. The only survivor was his Czech pinot. Poland and the world had lost a great man.
